Chinese Observe Day by Building

The "Feast of the Dead" or the day of "Hong Ting" was observed yeaterday among the Chinese. Those of the faith in Washington took such gifts as Oriental dried fruits, candles, roast chicken, reast pig, and other Celestial delicacles to the Congressional Cometery to propitiate the departed ones. Little fires were burned on the graves with beauty was burned on the graves as the baskets were uncovered, and the prayers for the dead were written on pieces of red paper. Symbolishing their belief in their Diety and their reverence for the dead, the cus-tom of making offerings of food to their dead in the same manner that those of other faiths place flowers on the graves of, their departed, is one of the month of sacred known to the Celestial. This feast is one of the immemorial customs of the Chinese.

The number of deaths during the week was 106-dity-two white and fifty-four colored. There were 16 births of which 106 were white and forty-three colored.

Glen Echo Park.

With the annual mardi gras and confetti carnival scheduled for next week. Glen Eche Park plans to make the close of the most successful season of its history even more suspicious than was the penning. Colored lights are being scattered all over the grounds among the myriad of incandescents and the park in its gala attire is even more attractive than usual.

Casino Theater-Miss Eva Ray.

Canino Theater—Miss Eva Ray.

A scientific treat is in store for the playgoers of Washington. The Casino Theater next week will feature Miss Eva Ray, the famous clairroyant and telepathist. Miss Ray is noted throughout the country as having a marvelous grailus for the transmission of mental power and mind reading. Unlike most of the clairroyants in vaudeville, she does not claim to be a prophet or possessed of supernatural powers to see things in the future or reveal the past. Miss Ray's act is a clean, honest exposition of the science of mental telepathy and mind reading.

in the scond act of Mass Hay's per-formance a cashine of velvet is hung upon the stage and a committee from the audience is invited upon the stage to inspect critically everything in connec-tion therewith. The Busions performed in this cabinet are remarkable—astound-ing. Persons stationed close to her side cannot detect the methods used. An illusionist of Miss Bay's wonderful, mys-terious powers is sure to attract un-usually largo crowds to the Casino Thea-ter during her stay here, and any person will be at liberty to sak Miss Bay' arty question or to test her powers in any way they see fit.
